Dear Sir or Mam,

We moved on to Lost Horse in 1964 and have been here since. Even though the population has increased, it's still a nice place to live.

It is used for many activities such as walking, biking, climbing, 4 wheeling and hunting. In winter it's a good place for snow mobeling, cross country skiing and snow shoeing. We are definitely against widening the road and changing its character to support a rock quarry. For years the area has been used for recreational activities and we feel a rock quarry would ruin all this!

Surely there are other places where a quarry is already established. That rock could be bought from. Who's trying to line their pockets?

As you know the road is narrow and winding and would have to be widened to accommodate large trucks. Who pays for this and how many accidents would occur?

Our kids grew up on Lost Horse riding horseback, skiing, fishing, exploring. I'd like to see the next generation and the next one have the same opportunities.

Please consider what a mess this would make of the canyon!

Sincerely,

Delores & Juan Davis
